Rebel Nation B.V. is proud of the strong brand that has been built up over the years and guards it carefully. To prevent damage to the brand, clear agreements have been made about the use of the name Rebel Nation or other trade names used by Rebel Nation, the logo and the images of RN products. RN does not permit any of its intellectual property rights to be reproduced or publicised by third-parties without its prior express permission.

Use by third parties

We therefore ask all persons or organisations wishing to make use of the name, the logo or any intellectual property right of Rebel Nation to first contact RN's Corporate Communication department. A decision on whether to grant permission will be made on the merits of each application or situation. If permission is not granted but a third party nonetheless makes use of an intellectual property right of RN, RN will invoke its rights and may institute legal proceedings against the party making use of an intellectual property right of RN. The costs thus incurred will be recovered from the third party in question.

The use of intellectual property rights of Rebel Nation for commercial purposes is permitted in some situations provided that RN has given its express permission for this to be done.
